

Letter to Readers

Our cover art this year is pure pathology. If anyone asks you if this year’s guide is any good, you can say “it’s rotten!” We wouldn’t want our recent National Extension Multimedia Award from the American Society of Horticultural Sciences going to our heads. For 2023, you will find some updated efficacy data in the Cucurbit and Fruiting Vegetable Fungicide Efficacy tables, improved tables listing small package hardware store and garden center pesticides, some revamped Horticulture sections, and a new High Tunnel section.

We have returned to the traditional sales model for this year’s bulletin. If you cannot source one locally, check with your extension person to reach out to me for direct shipping. You can also download and print the whole book or specific sections of interest at mwveguide.org/guide, or explore the searchable online version at mwveguide.org.

A special thanks to Liz Maynard, who has helped immensely with this guide over the years.

Best of luck this year!
